MY BABE -- A SWEET FLOWER

One lovely morn, in early Spring, Within a shady bower, I there espied a tiny thing, A sweet and blushing flower!

With queenly grace and brilliant hue, It grew and bloomed alone; Its leaves were tipt with sparkling dew, And like a dimond shone.

With rapture I beheld that flower, So fresh, so fair, so lone: Again I sought that fairy bower— My lovely flower was gone!

Too pure for earth it had become,
That sweet and lovely flower;
An angel came and bore it home,
It blooms in Eden's bower!

In Eden's fair and rosy bower,
Where flowers immortal bloom,
Bright angels gaze on my sweet flower,
And breathe its rich perfume!

"I'll steer my barque to Eden's" bower,
The home of all the blest;
Forever there my lovely flower
Will on my bosom rest! CALLIE LYONS.

WE WISH TO CALL YOUR ATTENtion to a subject in which we are all particularly interested at the present time, viz:

Life insurance. It is a necessity of our American Civilization, and of the times in which we live, since slavery has been abolished. There is but one producer usually in the family, and the others only enjoy. When the Producer dies, he must leave Money behind him, or the family suffers.
